

Holiday Traditions

I come from a large family – five brothers and sisters – and now that we are all older, the family has grown to over twenty people including grandparents, husbands, wives and kids! Instead of buying gifts for everyone, my mom has us each draw a name out of a hat on Thanksgiving Day – and then she announces the holiday theme. The themes range from a room in the house – the kitchen, library, or craft room to anything handmade. Each of us has to gift within the theme to our special person – as well as fill their stocking. This year I drew my daughters name (love that!) and the theme is color – so I will be making Sofia a beautiful boro patched quilt with our new collection Fleur de Noel. I love this tradition of one thoughtful gift for the holidays – it takes the stress out of having to think of shopping or buying and puts the emphasis on thinking about doing something truly unique for one special person.

Fleur de Noël

This sweet small collection of fabric was inspired by a holiday we spent in France for a wedding years ago. The bride wore a beautiful pearl silk dress with a red velvet cape and icy grey diamonds - so elegant! Our new collection, Fleur de Noel includes the cool greys combined with the classic reds and naturals - the perfect palette for your holiday quilts, stocking and tree ornaments.
